AHEAD OF THE CURVE

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

Following its premiere at this year's Whitney Biennial, Fritz Haeg's "Animal Estates" comes to SFMOMA in July. For a series of four workshops, the artist (below) has selected local species displaced by humans and invites residents to construct new homes for them within the existing architecture of the city. July 6–July 27; 151 Third St., SF, 415-357-4000, sfmoma.org.

LOST AND FOUND

Known for rediscovering lesser-known artists, San Francisco's Lost Art Salon is hosting an exhibition of works by California painter Alysanne McGaffey. As part of the Bay Area figurative movement of the 1950s and '60s, McGaffey painted her fellow artists, capturing one of the most prolific periods in San Francisco art history with works such as the 1960 painting Untitled (right). June 26–Sept. 15; 245 S. Van Ness Ave., #303, SF, 415-861-1530, lostartsalon.com.
